

Inspired by Alexandria's Lighthouse, one of the Seven Wonders of the Ancient world, Pedro Cerisola designed this vertical piece, carrying forward his research on modular structures delivering a unique system of connection between the pieces that conform the tower.

Alexandria's geometry imbues the piece with solidity while it emanates quietness to whichever space it is placed into. Alexandria has a highly polished surface, celebrating the age-old tradition of craftsmanship, and is constructed in Mexican tzalam wood due to its intrinsic flexibility it has an oiled finish that brings the materiality of tzalam wood to the fore adding to the piece its magnificent array of natural different tonalities.
